

ALL SIDES ARE EQUALLY TO BLAME FOR THE VIOLENCE IN SUDAN.

THE ONLY HOPE IS FOR THE UNITED NATIONS TO INTERVENE!

Firstly, concerning the violence in Sudan. Please see the attached Strife in South Sudan article I wrote on this subject.

Of course, I would never agree with the suggestion that the United Nations needs to do something about it as they always seem to manage to take a bad situation and make it much, much worse.

Therefore, I do not agree with this article you linked, especially as it wants to blame both leaders equally, without distinguishing, as I do in my article, as to which one has been a surrogate of the Arab North and has a two and a half decade track record of treachery.

So, I think the UN is dangerous and counter-productive.

May God continue to be your strength and shield.
