

Thank you for your e-mail response to our film review on Invictus Idolatry.

We do appreciate critical feedback.

Of course, film reviews are by their very nature a subjective opinion from one person's point of view.

However, every attempt was made to be objective and factual in this article. It is the film that presented a one sided perspective and this film review was an attempt to try and present some balance to that.

What is it about the film review that you found offensive? Is it the facts that Nelson Mandela personally pushed through the legalisation of abortion in South Africa? Or the fact that the Springbok rugby captain, Francois Pienaar, was inaccurately depicted in the film as a fornicating and swearing individual?

We have received a tremendous amount of positive responses to our film review. Yours was one of only two negative responses. But what is not clear is what you are specifically rejecting to.

Our only concern is the glory of God and the fulfillment of the Great Commission. In our film reviews we seek to apply the Lordship of Christ in all areas of life.

Please let us know how we have failed to do that and we would be glad to rectify it.

Yours for Faith and freedom.
